Biographical note

Autumn Joy Stanley was born in Vinton County, Ohio, on 21 December 1933. She received an A.B. (1955) with high distinction from Transylvania College and an M.A. (1967) in English and American Literature from Stanford University.

Stanley worked as an editor of scholarly books and science textbooks for Stanford University Press (1969-1974) and Wadsworth Publishing Co. (1974-1980) before turning to a career as an independent scholar and researcher. She also taught at Pacific Lutheran College (1957-1958) in Tacoma, Washington, and Cañada College (1969-1970) in Redwood City, California. She was an affiliated scholar of the Institute for Research on Women and Gender at Stanford University (1984-1988).

Stanley writes in the areas of women's studies, with a focus on issues of gender and technology, as well as on food and wine. Her books include Asparagus: The Sparrowgrass Cookbook (1976) and Mothers and Daughters of Invention: Notes for a Revised History of Technology (1993), as well as two children's books, Maiden the Buttercup (1977) and The Enchanted Quill (1978). Her work has been published in various magazines, scholarly journals, and anthologies.

Collection description

The Autumn Stanley Papers (1674-2004, undated; bulk 1970-2004) document her research in women's history and women in science and technology. The collection includes biographical information on Autumn Stanley, correspondence, manuscripts, and subject files. The majority of the collection relates to Stanley's book Mothers and Daughters of Invention: Notes for a Revised History of Technology, including manuscripts, research correspondence, notes, and copies of source materials. Also included are materials relating to her book Raising More Hell and Fewer Dahlias: The Public Life of Charlotte Smith, 1840-1917. The collection also includes manuscripts and related correspondence for articles and essays on women inventors and other subjects. In addition, the collection contains samples of inventions by women or related to women inventors. Most of the earlier documents in the collection are photocopies, not originals.

Organization

The collection is organized in six series:
